ARTICLE SUBMISSION AND PUBLICATION GUIDELINES

Parties contributing draft articles agree to the following provisions and requirements:

1. The article is an original article authored or co-authored by the article contributor.
2. A draft version of the article is submitted to editorsdesk@pro-focus-publishing.com . The draft will be subject to editing and revision as the editor may deem necessary and any final version will be approved by the article contributor.
3. When a draft article is forwarded to the editor an article submission fee is due and payable. This fee will be refunded if the draft article is not ultimately accepted for publication. Once approved the article contributor may then request that the article be published. At that time a non-refundable publication fee is payable.
4. Articles are to be copyright compliant. Any complaints of copyright infringement brought by third parties may result in rejection or removal of an article.
5. Articles may not endorse specific branded products. However, a description of the generic characteristics, advantages and disadvantages of particular types of products or services is acceptable.
6. Professional Focus may require draft articles be submitted on a form that it provides to article submitters.
7. Once an article is published article contributors may use the article without limitation in the course of their professional practices or business activities.
8. If photos are used in the article they are to be submitted in electronic form with the article draft.
9. Articles may be submitted up to the number allowed under the particular group plan. No minimum number of article submissions are required.
